INSTITUTE

Transforming the lives of first-generation and limited income college students around the world

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,

It is our pleasure to acknowledge the accomplishments of Muhammad Hamza in the Aspire Leaders Program at the Aspire Institute, a nonprofit organization whose mission is to empower emerging leaders from first generation, limited income backgrounds to achieve economic mobility and community impact.

The Aspire Leaders Program, designed by Harvard Business School professors, is a rigorous 9-week learning experience that develops learners into confident, self-aware leaders who can set goals, communicate effectively, and take action to solve real-world problems.

Muhammad was among the 10,588 finalists who successfully completed the program out of 50,284 students accepted to Cohort 2 in 2026.

We commend Muhammad for their dedication and achievement and look forward to the contributions they will make as a leader in their community and beyond.

Sincerely,

Meena Sonea
